TOPOLOGIK, founded and directed by Prof. Michele Borrelli (University of Calabria, Italy), is an International Journal of Philosophy, Educational and Social Sciences. In cooperation with colleagues from nearly all European countries and outside Europe, the journal publishes articles representing a wide variety of current philosophical, educational and social issues and aims to a further exchange and an engaged critical discussion. The scientific committee features highly acclaimed international specialists whose studies focus on the subjects targeted by the journal.

In addition to several research projects in cooperation with international Universities, the scientific studies of the journal are based on assistance of the 'International Karl-Otto Apel Centre of Philosophy' in Calabria, and of 'Concordia – International Journal of Philosophy', founded and directed by Prof. Raúl Fornet-Betancourt (Germany).

TOPOLOGIK is published regularly 2 times a year (print version) and is available although as a frequently actualized online version (www.topologik.net) including reviews and information about recent events. The articles are published in Italian, English, French, German, Portuguese or Spanish.
